EYES, NOT PIE

Our smart proof-reader was responsible for the error in last week's paper when a pie social was announced for tonight at the Poplar Ridge hall. It should have read an eye social. We don't know what an eye social is, and probably not many of our readers do either, but there is one way of finding out, and that is by being at the Community Hall at 8.30.

IN 1871 Mutual Life assurance in force amounted to $500,000. The tree was yet a tiny sapling.

In twenty years later, total Mutual assurance amounted to $14,934,807. The young tree was well rooted.

In 1911 Mutual business in force totalled $71,020,770. The years had brought maturity.

In 1921, the amount of Mutual business had grown to the enormous sum of $228,697,366!

Today Mutual insurances in force total $269,982,566. Last year, alone, $39,040,578 in new policies was issued, showing that the big protecting tree is still growing vigorously with no limit in sight.

ALBERTA POOL LOSES MONEY FOR FARMERS, SAYS STEWART

Lower Price Received in Alberta Than in Saskatchewan, Is Contention

Winnipeg, April 14.—Premiums paid at Vancouver have saved the Alberta wheat pool very serious losses. In spite of three cents premium some months secured by the western wheat pool, as compared with Saskatchewan, the wheat pool situation detrimental to Alberta prices was also the tie-up at Vancouver.

This was the evidence Saturday afternoon before the royal commission of James Stewart, former manager of the wheat board, and the dominating figure in the grain industry.

Somewhat Lessened

Mr. Stewart gave the commission considerable data to support his contention, and said the losses of Alberta, as compared with Saskatchewan, was somewhat lessened by the fact that as high as three cents premium had been paid by the Vancouver pool some months. He said these losses of both pool and non-pool members was due to the pool operations eliminating competition; that is, the pool set the spreads, and the other companies had to follow any more. This view has been controverted, however, by President H. W. Wood of the Alberta pool, who has stated that the Alberta pool members have received and are receiving several cents more than the non-pool than they would have had the pool not been in operation.

Comparative Figures

Mr. Stewart said that on December 15, based upon the 26-cent freight rate, Saskatchewan producers were getting 72 cents, as compared with 70 cents in Alberta. December 17, Saskatchewan prices were again 72 cents, and those in Alberta 70 cents for the same grades, but on that date the Alberta grain routed westward was receiving one cent premium at Vancouver. January 15, the price was better from Alberta, both Saskatchewan and Alberta prices were 77 cents a bushel, but on that date the Vancouver premium was three cents. Again, on February 15, the price was ruling the same in each province, 78 cents, based upon this 26-cent freight rate, but the Alberta producers were again getting a three-cent premium, Mr. Stewart said, which saved the situation.

Will Give Evidence

Next week the Alberta pool manager will give evidence before the commission, and pool promoters assist his analysis of the situation will show the Alberta pool to better advantage, but Mr. Stewart's evidence clearly sets out the figures, and he asserts the loss to both pool and non-pool producers of Alberta, as compared with those in Saskatchewan, where there was no pool, was due to the elimination of competition by the pool spreads being adopted in Alberta, while in Saskatchewan the wheat was marketed at a higher ruling price.

The Obvious Route.

Matthew Snow, veteran agricultural authority, and member of the board of grain commissioners, said on Saturday: "I see no reason why the Vancouver route should not ultimately market all grain produced in Alberta. It is the obvious development of the Pacific route. I would not say that the claim of Vancouver that at least one member of the grain commission should make his headquarters on the coast, or that a deputy should be appointed who will be permanent in Vancouver, but the growing importance of the western route does, in my judgment, entitle the North Pacific coast metropolis to the very serious consideration of the Canada Grain Act."

When the royal commission goes to Vancouver to investigate the Van Allen chaos, several lawyers, representing prominent grain export firms, and several representatives of Montreal, New York and Minneapolis exporters, have announced that they will take this opportunity to look over the western grain route.

THE HANSEN CASE

To the Editor of The News.

Dear Sir:

Mr. Amos Wilton, in his letter published in your columns under date April 9, states "no what I may say on this matter (Hansen case) must be from a common-sense view."

In the latter paragraphs he advances four questions in illustration of this common-sense view.

1. Would you approve of a British Columbia lumberman, accused of murder, being tried before a jury composed of I.W.W.s?

2. Supposing a member of the former Liberal Government in Saskatchewan was accused of embezzlement, or even murder, would you try him before a jury composed of leaders in the U. F. A.?

3. Would you try a prohibitionist before a "wet" jury?

4. Would you try a man accused of bootlegging before a "dry" jury?

All these questions are in substance and in substance one.

They can be reduced to the single question: Do you approve of "packed" juries?

If they apply to the Hansen case, then the inuendo is that the jury in that trial was composed of enemies of the accused.

British justice does not approve of, or permit, packed juries.

It would be more strange if Mr. Wilton is ignorant of this.

Whereas "Heders" are in control of law and order in Alberta, and only then, will there be ground for comparison to ask such fanciful questions.

But, sir, if these innuendoes are intended to have application to the Hansen case, then they are more than absurd. They have not a single justification in fact.

To give a prisoner every advantage of fairness that was possible, the venue of the trial was removed from Red Deer, where, presumably, there might be feeling strongly biased in favour of (See the prisoner's statement obtained before the trial by Messrs. Goldsmith and Soberg and printed in the Advocate, Nov. 23 last), or against him.

The trial was removed a hundred miles away, where it is safe to say that neither the slain man, members of his family, nor even the village in which he had lived, were much concerned and where none of the sentimental matters would influence the resultant verdict in favour of or against him.

How does this deal your case? Mr. Wilton's questions all infer a "packed" jury. This fact declares this inference to be absolutely baseless and untrue.

In regard to the question of juries versus the Court of Appeal, Mr. Wilton makes comparison. "Now, if juries have fallen down badly at times, as the Edmonton Journal admits, why then is it not best to place the case before the Supreme Court judges before administering the death penalty?"

If it were possible for the Supreme Court Judges to be as infallible in justice as it is possible they may be in law, there would be some point in the question; but are they any more infallible in justice than the jury system? Everyone knows that the law is not the same thing as justice. No one would claim that law and justice are the same. Probably there is more and a great deal more justice in the jury system than in any other. It is not given to any mundane man or system to be perfect; but, and it is a considerable but, British justice under the jury system is renowned and acknowledged in every land for something as near the perfect as humanity has any prospect of seeing at present.

Yours, A. M. STEELE.

A VILLAGE EMIGRATES

300 HEBRIDEANS FOR CANADA

Edward Wilton, one of our good old friends residing in Hull, England, sent us the following most interesting account of the emigration of the Hebrideans from their home land to Red Deer. This party arrived in Red Deer on Friday, the 11th inst. The extract was taken from a British paper.

Lochboisdale (Isle of Uist) Here in the distant Hebrides to-day were some fifteen of the most interesting which, to one beholder at least, was an unwanted sight, something which can not be denied, perhaps, as the wedding day of a whole village of people.

Three hundred emigrants left their native shores for overseas. The world has known its full of emigrants in the past going far and wide to the unknown, but it struck one today, watching the departure of these 300, that under the wise and humane organization of our times they went as men and women not breaking their lives but founding them definitely. They went from their old homes to new ones, but amid familiar people, to a settlement at Red Deer, in Alberta, where families of the Western Isles have already preceded them and have long enticed them to come out and be happy. From the bottom of God, tell them to come out here," ran a Gaelic letter lately received in Uist.

The Canadian Pacific Company, with great kindness and generosity, sent the 10,000-ton liner Marcho to this hamlet of Lochboisdale to embark them from their doorsteps.

Piper's Lament

One of their own clergy, Father MacDonnell, who is, indeed, the guiding spirit in this enterprise, came from Barra to see them to their destination, and one of their own curates from Barra is emigrating with them. He supervised instruction in their needs and ways of Canadian agriculture, and will then settle down on Barra, for which the arrangements have been spread over 25 years. So homelike is the spirit at Red Deer that next year they hope to have a Highland gathering.

Never a bride without tears, and there were not a few tears shed at Lochboisdale to-day. These Hebrideans are an imaginative, a "wistful," and a spiritual people. The small throng today on the little jetty, a hundred and fifty or so, there were young men talking of the ghosts they had seen, and as the ship strode up and down playing "The Lament of Flora MacDonald," the emigrants to leave the tenders, cried out to their kinsmen ashore, not with cries but with strange high-pitched cries, "Alas, they cried, and 'Alas' like curians.

PUBLIC MEETING ON THE HANSEN CASE

On the night of Tuesday, April 15, a committee of the citizens of Sylvan Lake was formed and held a meeting in the Municipal hall. The Rev. Mr. McKee, Presbyterian minister, ably presided over the proceedings. After due and earnest discussion it was resolved that:—
"Whereas, at Sylvan Lake on the night of November 19, 1923, Edgar Falkner, Canadian citizen, was slain while defending his home by one Hans Hansen, a citizen of the kingdom of Denmark; and whereas there appears to be considerable perturbation in the country.
"Therefore, we, citizens of Sylvan Lake, hereby request an assembly of the citizens of this community and the country to consider:—
"1. What steps should be taken to make reparation to the widow and orphans of the late Edgar Falkner for the loss of husband and father;
"2. As it has been reported in the press that the Amendment to the Criminal Code, relative to the formation of a Court of Criminal Appeal, was not discussed in the House of Commons before being placed on the Statute Book, that Parliament be memorialized to take that amendment into serious re-consideration.
"And we hereby call an assembly of the people to meet in the Knights of Pythias hall, Sylvan Lake, on Monday, April 22, at 8 p.m., prompt."

THE RELATIONS OF THE HOME AND THE SCHOOL

be ridiculous to suppose that the nature of the child has changed in the past few years. But I can assure you that when I taught in the High School here some ten or twelve years ago, we had no great difficulty in getting application to work. What influences, then, are to blame? Undoubtedly this practice of passing without examination has had something to do with it. In VIII, IX, and X. The war had an unsettling effect from which we have not yet recovered, an effect on both pupil and parent. There has been for some years an unaltered desire for pleasure among old and young. The moving pictures, which really ought to be a means towards education, have too often been served up emotionally and have dealt with subjects unfit alike for young and old. The intrigues of men and women of society, apparently living in luxurious palaces, are poor visual and mental food for anyone, and must have a really bad effect on people in their teens. Those things, and the fact that parents must have in the past few years allowed their children too much freedom and have used the words "must" and "have to" so seldom, are probably responsible for the increased difficulty in getting application from the senior grades.

But there are other things that we are coming to a realization of these faults. There is today a growing demand for the charging of fees in the High School. To most of us this seems to be only an expression of a desire to lighten the burden of taxation, but, gentlemen, there is more behind it. It means that we are beginning to realize that education, and especially higher education, is being regarded with indifference by those very people who should really be the most interested in it. The trouble is that secondary education is taken for granted. It is quite the commonest thing in this country, for the pupil to go on to high school, little or no thought being given to the fact that it is a career. I venture to say that if fees were charged for high school education, the number of students would be little difficult in getting their pupils to work, and parents would see the value of the education. I am not in favor of charging fees in the high school. I merely used the subject as an illustration. When I went to the high school of Dundee my fees were paid quarterly by my father and my home-work was done nightly under his supervision. I have had my ears boxed even when going to high school for carelessness and neglect. How many of the Red Deer parents would use such measures to help out the high school staff?

So far I have been critical. Let me try a little construction work. The method of instruction used today is very different from what it was in our school days. The effort required from the pupil is much less, there being a much greater effort made by the teacher and textbook writer to make the absorption of knowledge interesting as well as profitable. Going to school is not then such a drudgery as it used to be, and I have no hesitation in saying that the greatest punishment that could be meted out to the average child would be keeping him away from school. In every well organized institution work is carried on according to a well planned routine. For the exception in the school. The teacher plans her work for the day and for the month, and she knows that it will be done by a certain time in the year. She also has a time-table by which she regulates her work. When different subjects are studied, it is the same time of the home? To some extent it is. Meals are consumed at regular hours, and when the children are done according to schedule? I would suggest, gentlemen, that in the well-ordered home there should be specified hours for work and for play. If parents were to plan a regular schedule for these and see that it was adhered to, what a help it would be to themselves and to the teacher. A place for everything, and everything in its place, is a good old saying. "A time for everything, and everything at the right time," is just as valuable.

I like the movies. Who doesn't? But I feel sure that if you talk with me that the formal censorship undertaken by provincial authorities is not sufficient, I would suggest that parents constitute themselves a board of censorship to decide just what pictures their children should see. This would ensure better patronage of the picture theatre and better pictures for the young.

I have already mentioned the use of "must" and "don't" in the home. To be effective the branches of these should be accompanied by certain sanctions. Where the parents can do most to help the school system is in their interest in the children's studies and achievement. Reports are sent out monthly. These should be carefully studied, compared with the previous month's, commented on, and filed away. The teacher will be only too glad to have the parents' comments on the return slip. Our teachers here take great care with their pupils' exercise books. Neatness and accuracy are demanded. Parents would find a great deal of interest in looking over these books, and I venture to suggest that they might have their children bring them home for inspection every week. Home work is given in the senior grades. Parents generally find that their children do not do their work. But do they oversee it? It may be objected that it is unfair to help a child with his home-work. Let me assure you that the teacher will be only too thankful to find an improvement in the neatness and quality of these exercises. Nor is it necessary for the parent to actually do the work, only to make sure that it is properly done.

My last appeal is that parents take a definite interest in the actual subjects of study. I have already indicated that the modern method of instruction emphasizes interest. Let me add that the subjects of study themselves are much more interesting than they were 30 years ago. The modern home and other periods where parents and children are together provide ample time for talks about the subjects of study.

In arithmetic the emphasis is on practical problems. Fathers would find much interest in the solution, along with their children, of these problems. No country lends itself more to the study of nature than does Alberta. At appropriate times in the year, birds, animals and natural phenomena are studied. What a fund of interesting conversational material these subjects provide. In the senior grades agriculture takes the place of nature study. The children of grades VII and VIII can tell you a lot about different types of cattle, pigs and chickens. What can you tell them? This is first and foremost a farming country. Farming is worth while talking about. Talk about it. When I went to school geography was largely a matter of learning lists of names by rote. Today it is very different. The study of the world begins in the study of the places from which things in common use come to us and what we send to them in return. A child in grade, probably knows more about where the pepper you are sprinkling over your food comes from than you do. Let him tell about it. The study of our own province is not a matter of memorizing but talks about auto trips from place to place and what is seen on the way, what the people are doing in different places. Most parents have travelled a good deal and can supplement what the teacher has taught. Similar interesting and practical methods are used in teaching the great outside world. By talking about it with their children parents will revive much of their own knowledge and add much more to it.

History is no longer a mass of dates and a list of kings and battles. In the junior grades it is really the elementary study of the citizen's duties, rights and duties of citizenship. Parents could help the grade III and IV teachers a lot by talking to their children about some of the elementary laws of society, such as lost and found, cruelty to animals, admissibility of language, helping the poor, health laws, game laws, rights on the public highway, etc. In the intermediate grades comes the study of great characters in history. Get your children to tell you about Alfred the Great, Cour-de-lion, Robin Hood, Drake, Raleigh, and host of others who excite the mind of the young to a desire for a knowledge of the world in which most people live and which comes in the senior grades. The history of England as taught today is a study of how people have struggled for political, industrial and religious freedom. Did you study history in that way? The children are different times in their history. How they farmed and traded and made their money. Something is to be learned from by asking your grade VII or VIII boy to tell about life on an English estate at the time of the Signing of Magna Charta.

Composition is a very important part of our country's education. The liberty of speech prevails and, alas, great liberty is taken with the forms of speech. When your children are talking to you about the things I have mentioned above they are really practicing oral composition, and you can help them in the correct use of it by checking their errors. Here are some points that you can fight against: (1) "I seen," "I done," "I was," "he don't," "he boys is," "we was," "here," "the come," "him and," "John be," the use of can for may, try for let, watch for teach, good for well, guess for think, sure for certainly.

A new set of readers has been authorized for our public schools which will be in use in the towns this fall. I find them much more interesting than the old readers, and there is therefore all the more reason why their content should be made the subject of home study. But there is a better reason perhaps. They contain real literature: poems by the greatest poets, old and new, and stories by the best authors; lyrics of the sacred and; epics of heroic and modern times; prose stories of heroes of our race and of other climes; tales of wonder from ancient lands and modern fairy stories. Let me illustrate: Last year I have lost sight of my aim in this, let me now say that I am home can help the school (1) by having a well planned routine for work and play; (2) by a consistency of the child's means of pleasure; (3) by the use of "must" and "don't" with their sanctions; (4) by showing interest in monthly reports; (5) by watching carefully the improvement in the exercise books; (6) by overseeing home work; and (7) by showing a general interest in the subject matter on which the child is working.

THE UNITED STATES AND JAPAN

The United States Congress has passed an act excluding the Japanese from the States, and the natural result is a blaze of anger in Japan. Nothing else could be expected. The Japanese know that they have by sheer merit and hard fighting proved their claim to equality with any of the Great Powers of the world. They are proud and sensitive to a degree. Most young nations are. The United States itself is only just beginning to get over the condition of chronic swelled head which has afflicted it ever since it achieved its independence. The Japanese naturally scoff at any suggestion that they are unfit to associate with white races. They know that the United States includes amongst its citizens even the most despised and an indefinite swarm of all manner of European races conspicuous chiefly for their criminal tendencies. For the United States to exclude the Japanese altogether and expect to remain on an even superficial terms of friendship with Japan is out of the question.

It means that the two nations will adopt towards one another an attitude of definite hostility which will mean war just as soon as the Japanese think they can safely venture on it. British observers of Japan say that preparations for war in that country are going steadily on just as they went on in Germany before 1914, and they place the date at which those preparations will be complete at just six years from now. It will be remembered that years before the outbreak of the Great War with Germany the late Lord Fisher gave it as his considered opinion that the German preparedness would reach their peak-point in 1914, and he was exactly right in his prediction, which was treated at the time with more or less contempt by the British authorities all over the Empire.

Such a question as is at issue here is unlikely to be solved by the League of Nations or any other body. The United States may be wholly right in excluding the Japanese from their territory. That is not in the least likely to make the Japanese regard the exclusion as anything else than a deliberate insult to their national honour, so has been already stated by their newspapers. The overclouded state of Japan is making the acquisition of more territory of the most urgent importance for that country. All around her are lands which she could annex today if it were not for the United States. China, for instance, could make no stand against Japan. The Philippine Islands could be seized at any time. It was hoped that the Washington Agreement had averted the danger of war in the Pacific for a time, but the passing of this Act by the States has destroyed in a day all the good results that might have come from the Washington Agreement. It is to be noted that the Act was passed against the wishes of Mr. Hughes, the American Secretary of State, who has shown himself so wise and diplomatic in international affairs. It will need all his wisdom and diplomacy to avert the swift growth of a great threat to the peace of the world.

THE LATE SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE

In the recent session of the Alberta Legislature over 50 acts were passed. Of these the only really outstanding one which aroused public interest in any extent was the Liquor Act. That act is now in force, and the whole it seems to be a good act, though in our opinion it has a serious blot on it in the shape of the beer bars, which it is wholly doubtful if the majority of the people really wanted when they voted for government control in the somewhat hazy Clause D. The local option provision of the Act had no authority whatever in the referendum, but as it applies only to the equally unauthorised beer bars, it is not likely to do much harm except by canning agitation and expense in taking votes if the temperance party think it worth while to have such. If the provision as to clubs is strictly enforced, the Act should lead to an improvement as compared with the unsuccessful prohibition.

Of the other acts the Farm Loans Act and the Highways Act are possibly the most important. It is a pity that the Farm Loans Act was passed so late in the Session. It is an important act. It is efficiently administered, it should be good. It is loosely, carelessly politically administered, it will merely add to the debt of the province. The Highways Act again depends largely on administration. The improvement of our roads is of vital importance. Much good work has been done on them in recent years. Much remains to be done. It lies with the Government to get the best value out of the public money expended.

The real importance of the late session, apart from the Liquor Act, lay in the linked questions of administration and finance. It is to be profoundly regretted that the budget has not yet been balanced. The failure to achieve such balancing is a cardinal error on the part of the government, for which the burdensome legacies bequeathed by the Liberal Party is not a complete excuse.

It is becoming gradually clearer that the crucial need of the world today is not reform in legislation, but efficient, honest, economical administration. Our laws might fairly well be left alone for a time. There are far too many cranks, petty laws being passed all over the world, which express merely the well-intentioned whims of individuals rather than the general demand of public needs. On the other hand good administration is becoming a rare exception. Political financial scandals are the order of the day. The Sefton case in Newfoundland, the Home Bank case in Ontario, the Pacific Great Eastern case in British Columbia, all the scandals in the States are instances of this, some of which touch us as pretty nearly. The Alberta Government has a clear record in respect of honesty. Its record in respect of efficient administration is not so good. It would be well advised to give the matter urgent attention.

THE ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAYS QUESTION

The United States Government is distinctly in favour of the construction of the waterways from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. The St. Lawrence, the Canadian Government is in favour of it also, but its support of the scheme is restrained by political fears. The economic result of such a waterway would be to allow ocean going ships to take cargoes of grain to Europe direct from the Great Lakes and Port Arthur on the Canadian side of the Lakes and from Duluth and other great grain ports on the American side. Expensive transshipment would be avoided. The West and the Middle West of both the States and Canada would benefit, but Montreal in Canada, and New York and other Atlantic ports in the States would suffer. Hence there arises the division of interest and the position will be entirely altered. There is another question involved. At present the St. Lawrence is a wholly Canadian waterway as far as its deepwater section is concerned. American vessels under the Treaty of Washington have the right to navigate the St. Lawrence, but none the less it is entirely under our control. If the present scheme for a joint construction of a waterway by the States and Canada is carried out, the position will be entirely altered. The States will be more or less of a partner's rights of control and interference. To many Canadians that is an entirely undesirable thing to happen. It is the management and the ownership of anything is notoriously difficult and productive of friction. Canadians of the best type have no desire to import into Canada another question of divided ownership, which might possibly result in a great nuisance as that of French fishing rights on the Atlantic Coast.

It is not the question of American interference and encroachment that bothers the Canadian Government. True to its policy of stealthy subversion of Canada to the States, the Canadian Government looks with complacency on this step towards the elimination of frontiers between the two countries. Why should our American cousins not share our waterways? Why have they both the Government leaders in their councils, and the great American financial interests, with longing eyes on Canada and her magnificent resources, then suggest the waterways, and urge that they should be translated into action in respect of the waterways question. Then comes the horrid doubt in the Government's mind. Quebec is opposed to the waterways scheme. Quebec never by any chance thinks of or supports any interest whatever except that of its own particular advantage. Quebec is the bulwark of the present Government. If Quebec turns on the Government, it is lost, in spite of the acquisition by the latter of the Progressive Party's support. It is an interesting question, the sort of dilemma which fairly often faces a government or an individual unable to avow openly its secret aims and lacking in any principles which can command general respect from the public. For once in a way Quebec seems likely to be of real though quite unintentional service to Canada and the Empire.

THE HANSEN CASE AGAIN

It is said that the Alberta Government is considering taking an appeal of the Hansen case to the Privy Council. That may possibly be wise, though we rather doubt it. Unless Hansen is to be indubitably hanged if the Privy Council reverse the Court of Appeal's decision, the appeal will be merely a useless expense. Let Hansen be deported on the expiry of his sentence. It is not so much Hansen as the law that needs attention. The better course is for the Alberta Government to make an urgent and preemptory demand at Ottawa for the repeal without delay of the recent alteration of the Criminal Code and for the restoration of full judicial power to juries under a Supreme Court judge to decide once and for all on the facts of each case they try. Otherwise the Hansen case will merely be repeated indefinitely with results which most people seem to be agreed in regarding as wholly deplorable.

ST. JULIEN

Yesterday and today are the ninth anniversary of the Battle of St. Julien, the first engagement in which the Canadians distinguished themselves. There are so few survivors of this battle amongst us—so far as we can ascertain only four in and around Red Deer—that there is a tendency to let this anniversary pass unnoticed by the general public. At this battle the Canadians were new untried troops, and in the first time, with a certain amount of anxiety, were placed in charge of an important piece of line. The Germans launched their tremendous drive at the junction of the French and Canadian lines, and for the first time they were met by a determined and well-armed force. We need not go into the well known details of the fight, how the Canadians fought the gas with no other weapons than their handkerchiefs and with little or no artillery support, how, without food, water or sleep, they stopped the German drive for the channel ports until reinforcements arrived; how the spectacular bayonet charge of the 10th and 16th Battalions re-took the guns—these are now matters of history. Nowadays, when the historic battles of the Canadian army are slipping from the facile public memory, the only glimpse we have of the spirit that made the name of Canada ring gloriously through the world is when again, in some war, the spirit of the gloriously disabled, suffering under the handicap of having given the best years of their life to their country, battling bravely with the difficulties of re-establishing themselves during the post-war business depression. The West and the Middle West of both the States and Canada will still laugh at their difficulties. Those of us who stayed at home in the comfort they ensured us, are we doing all we can to help them in their present battle?

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is surprising that so little comment has been made in the bigger newspapers on the death of Hugo Stinnes, who was the most influential, and probably the most dangerous man in Germany, an implacable enemy of France and of Great Britain, and a man without scruples or morals. His was the old German attitude. His death will cause sorrow only to the old class Germans.

The Memorial Hospital has a very fine gramophone and few records. If any people have disc records that they can spare, the donation of them to the hospital will be an act of charity and kindness.

Canada seems to be uncovering some choice bits of scandal and gossip in the case of the late Sir John A. Macdonald. At least the investigations, if not so sensational as those across the line, seem to get somewhere.

We have been asking how the date of Easter is such a year. We have been asking how the date is so variable. The most feasible sounding one was that it was set by the milliner, after consultation with the weather prophet.

SALVATION ARMY EASTER SERVICES

The Salvation Army hall was packed to the doors on Wednesday evening to witness the special Easter programme put on by the girls and boys, all the numbers being set off with flowers. Rev. J. W. Churchill presided. The following was the programme: Recitation, "The Easter Lily," Elsie Moseley; Flag Drill, Primary class; solo, Mr. Johns; dialogue, "Wisdom's Crown," seven girls; Bowler Drill, twelve girls; recitation, "Lazy Daisy," Evelyn Moseley; solo, Mr. P. Castle; solo, two girls; recitation, "Planting Himself to Grow," Rachel and Walter Kelly; Basket Drill, ten young ladies; Swing Song, by all; tableaux, "The Changeling Cross," by eight girls.

There were some especially attractive numbers in the drill, the swing song in which excellent time was kept, and the tableaux. The training reflected the highest of credit on the officers—Adj. Lawson and Lieut. Reid. Miss Grace Moseley was accompanist. The gross proceeds will run over $10. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Olsen and the Baptist church for the use of their chairs and piano.

IF FOREIGNERS COME FIRST

Penhold, Alta., 21st April, 1924. The Editor, Red Deer News. Dr. Grant asks some questions regarding the Hansen case, and feeling that he would not get a satisfactory answer from Edmonton, I feel one has to try and follow a course that arrives at the result.

First you feel that had the murderer been a British subject, by birth he would have been hanged, but Hansen, being a foreigner, must be treated differently, and thus we find that a British-born subject must hang, but a foreigner (and especially a criminal record foreigner) must have the charge reduced to manslaughter and a light sentence.

We naturally think that if this manslaughter had slaughtered two instead of one he might have had his five years reduced to nil, and if he had slaughtered a whole family of British-born subjects, why not give him a bonus?

If foreigners come first—DISGUSTED.

WANTS SUNDAY OBSERVED

April 21, 1924.

To the Editor of Red Deer News. Dear Sir: I wonder if you can find space for a note in your paper, regarding the broadcast of the market news by the Alberta U.F.A., which, I am sorry to say, is given on Sunday. I believe they are given six days a week, to labour and do all their work, as well as others. Surely during that time they might find time to broadcast market reports; but perhaps the U.F.A. have agreed to forget the God of their Fathers and have taken unto themselves an idol in the guise of H. W. Woods. I would like to remind them that the Sabbath is a commandment of one of the Ten Commandments of one of the laws. The seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God.

DISGUSTED FARMER'S WIFE.

ECKVILLE U.F.A.

A splendid meeting was held last night at Eckville, where a large gathering of the high-water mark of 1921. Five new names were added to the same at the meeting.

The U.F.A. consented to our request of the exclusive handling of their time at this point for the season. This was asked in view of the fact that the Company now has an agent stationed here. Many discussions took place along lines of public policy. The matter in regard to lowering the tariff so as to flood the country with cheap oil and margarine was discussed at some length. It was pointed out that it was doubtful if the producers would receive any more for their butter, whether the oleomargarine is allowed to come in free or not. The creamery men would always use the butter to squeeze the price down to the lowest level; if not this cause, they would use a very small amount of New Zealand butter, or was going to arrive. The whole matter was to provide the workers with cheap food, so as to, in turn, be able to decrease the wages which invariably meant the lowering of the standard of living. On the other hand, it was thought it would have some effect on the price of butter, and if we kept out this cheap substitute, which was styled as not fit for human consumption, this in turn tend to raise the living standard. It is well known that on the average the wages go to meet the cost of subsistence. And in that light the reason for the matter was undoubtedly to ask Mr. Speakman to oppose anything which would let oleomargarine on the list.

The idea of keeping the meeting interested was talked about. It was decided to have at every meeting some number to give ten minute talk on any subject of interest, and then the meeting will discuss the same. This should prove very interesting. In view of the approaching busy season, it was agreed to henceforth meet in the evenings. The next meeting will be on Saturday, May 17, at 8 o'clock sharp in the evening. This was one of the best meetings ever held for a long while. Be sure to attend the next one; the members are sure to have something interesting on the programme.

REGINALD DENNY STARS AGAIN IN RACING DRAMA

Reginald Denny achieved a worthy reputation for fast action in the early rounds of the famous "Leather Pushers" series in which he was starred by Universal. "The Abyssal Race" the film version of Jack London's novel, again witnessed Denny in a burst of speed. Reg galloped a lot of fast furlongs in "The Kentucky Derby," thus adding to his reputation for the symbol of fast action. Now comes a picture in which Denny "strides" through the picture at a hundred miles per hour. All previous attempts at speed are as "slow motion" in comparison to the whirl of "Sporting Youth," the Universal picture which will be shown in the city, starting Thursday to the Rex Theatre.

Denny is noted in the Hollywood film colony for his excessively fast driving. He is a wonderful driver and likes to play tag with the best racers. His craving for speed was entirely satisfied during the filming of his latest feature. It is a story of a motor racing machine written by Byron Morgan, author of the famous "Roaring Road" stories published in the Saturday Evening Post. The climax of the story comes in a big road race and all of the thrill of such a race has been caught by the camera for the Denney film. The road race was staged at San Luis Obispo, near Monterey, California, and many of the most famous drivers in the country drove in it. Denney, by the way, proved himself a first rate racing driver.

Denney is supported by Laura La Plante and an all star cast. Harry A. Pollard directed the picture.

HINTS FOR FEEDING BACON HOGS

"It is encouraging to note an increasing interest during the past year in the production of bacon hogs," writes Mr. C. F. Bailey, of the Experimental Station, Fredericton, N.B. "If the industry is to be placed on a permanent basis the British market must be the objective, and for that reason every effort should be made to produce hogs of a type and quality demanded by the British consumer. This means that still greater attention must be given to improved methods of breeding and feeding our hogs, in order that the maximum profit be secured."

"From the time of weaning up to ten weeks of age is the most critical period in the life of a bacon hog. During this period they should be fed a ration containing a minimum of five. Equal proportions of finely ground oats and middlings with the addition of skim milk or buttermilk, will give very satisfactory results. When milk by-products are not available, tankage may be substituted. The feeding of tankage, however, requires more skill, and usually results in hogs being less thrifty and slower in finishing."

"From this period on, the ration should be gradually changed to include more of the farm grown grains. The practice followed at the Fredericton Experimental Station with very good results is as follows: From 10 to 14 weeks of age, oats two parts; from 14 to 20 weeks of age, one part. From 20 weeks of age to date of slaughtering, two parts barley; one part oats; and one part oats. Skim milk or buttermilk is not necessary if green feed are fed throughout the whole period. The barley may be replaced by buckwheat, which yields much the same results, although it has been found that barley produces a firmer quality of bacon. Much as is said about the importance of high class bacon, the importance of skillful feeding must not be overlooked. Cleanliness, regularity of feeding, avoidance of over-feeding or under-feeding are factors that very often decide between success and failure."

"When feeding hogs for bacon production it is important to note that type may be ruined by forcing, at an early age, with fattening foods. It is not good policy to feed for rapidity of gain too early, as it tends to too early laying on of fat and lessens the development of bone, thus tending to produce a hog with a short, thick carcass which is unsuited to the British market."

WHY DANISH BACON SELLS WELL

"There are several reasons for the popularity of Danish bacon in England. One is its uniformity. Provision merchants know that if they order two or three barrels of Danish bacon that all the sides will be of a similar size, weight and degree of fatness, and that the supply next week will be exactly similar. Another reason is that the principal Danish breeders of pedigree pigs select the utility points of their breeding pigs. In Denmark every pig breeder sells out precise and uniform carcasses of pigs, with the result that over 80 percent of the pigs cured in that country are of the converted class first quality bacon, which is mainly exported to England, whilst the bacon from the inferior pigs is retained for home consumption."

When our English cousins speak of second-hand garments they say "left off" where we say "cast off." The following advertisement recently appeared in a London paper:

"Mr. and Mrs. Hardy have left off clothing of all kinds. They can be seen any day from 3 to 6 p.m."

Poultry—Deliveries early next week may be readily sold, but later likely to drag. Calgary prices unchanged and ample offers at $17 to $20 delivered. Potatoes—Market slow, and do not overlook any sales, as demand is very light. Hides—Market unchanged and prospects not pointing to any improvement until winter hides out of the way. New York fur auction this week rather disappointing and several lines lower, though Alberta dealers have not cut prices yet. May be some revisions next week.

PORKER'S CAFETERIA PAYS "Feeding hogs cafeteria style is a money-saving method," writes a county agent or agricultural representative in an American newspaper. "It is already proved to be cheaper than hand feeding, and, if this is the case when experts do the hand feeding, it must be even more economical on the farm. Added to this is the big item of labor saving, which is growing more important to the farmer every day." Over a hundred farmers accepted the county agent's invitation and brought their hammers, saws and squares to his demonstrations. A specialist told them how, and the farmers did the work. Feeders were built on farms well distributed over the county. Each feeder was built with three compartments, one for corn or wheat, one for shorts or bran, and one for tankage. "As a result of the demonstrations, more than a hundred farmers installed self-feeders for their hogs during the year and are enthusiastically talking to their neighbors of the benefits resulting to both porker and proprietor. They estimate that their feeders have paid for themselves several times over during the year in labor-saving alone, and at the same time their hogs are showing the good effects of a balanced ration."

LEADING VARIETIES OF WHEAT

No variety of wheat has gained in popularity so rapidly as Marquis, known also as Ottawa No. 15. This wheat has become the leading variety of Canada, says the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. It bears a medium-sized headless head on stiff straw. The grain does not readily shell out, which makes it a little more difficult to thresh than some other sorts. Its high yielding quality, as well as its excellent milling properties, have given it the place it holds among the spring wheats of the world. In sections where very early varieties are needed on account of frost from August frost, Marquis, Pioneer, and Prelude are recommended. These have all been produced at Ottawa. By ripening early they have proved time and time again to merit the rank of really good wheats for northern districts.

BROOKSLEY BEAMS

April 12th, 1924
The Ladies' Aid held a very successful bazaar on April 4th. The members of the above Society wish to express their gratitude to the storekeepers of Red Deer for their various donations to the bazaar. Mrs. Clifton Spiers and daughter Joan have been the guests of Mrs. G. W. Smith this week. Joan and her mother went a minor operation on Monday and is doing well.
Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Afflar have returned from Sylvan Lake, where they have been visiting Mrs. T. B. Millar. A large crowd attended Mrs. H. C. Brock's sale on April 4th. A very pleasing feature of the sale was the presentation of a community silver tomato server to Mrs. Brock from the Brooksley Community Club, the name of the Club being engraved thereon.
Mrs. Frank Cullins and daughter Jean left on Saturday for a tour through Sunny Alberta.

MAY APPEAL HANSEN CASE TO ENGLAND

Attorney-General is Considering Going to Privy Council

(Edmonton Bulletin)
As no appeal from the Appeal Court of Alberta is open to Crown prosecutors, the Attorney-General's department in Alberta is considering an appeal to the Privy Council in England for a reversal of the decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Alberta in the Hansen murder case, it was learned yesterday.
The Appellate Division at the March sitting, in Edmonton, took under consideration the appeal of Vilhelm Elmer Hansen, convicted by a jury and subsequently sentenced to death for the murder of William Edgar Paulsen in the latter's home at Sylvan Lake, on November 19, 1922. After hearing the appeal this court rejected the charges against the Danish ex-convict to manslaughter, and changed the penalty from death to imprisonment for five years.
No further report has been made as to the deportation of Hansen, who was admitted to Canada in spite of a criminal record in Denmark, and while the question of appeal is under consideration, it is not probable that the matter will be disposed of some time.
The virtual reprieve of Hansen, obtained through the fight of his counsel, C. G. Mead, K.C., before the Appeal Court, has aroused much interest throughout the province.
Feeling in Alberta, and especially in the Red Deer section, has found expression frequently of late through letters to the press, and several have been sent to the Attorney-General.

Has Had Letters
"I have received several letters of late regarding the Hansen case," said the Hon. J. B. Brownlee, yesterday, "but due to the rush of the session just closed I have had no time to answer them."
"I have no comment to make," continued the Attorney-General, "except that we cannot appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, having been refused an appeal before in the case of the slot machines. The only statement that I would care to make is that we have been looking into the question of an appeal to the Privy Council."
Representations regarding the deportation of Hansen to Denmark, from which country he was admitted last August despite his penitentiary record, were made three weeks ago by Deputy Attorney-General R. A. Smith. Asked yesterday if he had since received any information, Mr. Smith replied, "I have no word."
In the ordinary course of events, I may not be further advised, as the matter is entirely in the hands of the Federal Department of Justice."

Interest Aroused
On March 22 The Bulletin published an extensive resume of the whole Hansen case, with details of the tragedy, the jury trial and the hearing in the Appeal Court. Since then many examples have been published throughout Canada and there has been a call for the interpretation of the full significance of the recent amendments to the Criminal Code of Canada which give such wide powers to the Appeal Court. A further appeal would answer in part.
Hugh C. Macdonald, K.C., special counsel for the crown in the Hansen case, yesterday received a letter of inquiry from Senator Lendrum McMeans, Senator for Winnipeg, who introduced the amendment to the Criminal Code in the Senate a year ago. Senator McMeans, in studying the effect of the change, is inquiring as to how the new turn in the law is working out in practice.

Here and There

For the first time in Ontario, an attempt will be made this spring to organize a voluntary egg pool. Arrangements for the undertaking have been completed by the United Farmers Co-operative Company, and it is hoped to control absolutely the egg market in the province.

During the year 1923, 3,380 tourist automobiles entered the province of Nova Scotia, the Land of Evangeline, according to the annual report of the Nova Scotia Tourist Commission. Altogether 63,000 tourists visited the province and distributed a sum estimated at $6,000,000.

A picked detachment of an official and ten men of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police recently crossed the Atlantic on the Canadian Pacific liner Melita. Their duty will be to guard the Canadian exhibits at the British Empire Exhibition. The Exhibition buildings cost about $200,000,000.

A chain of factories stretching across Canada will be established by the Dominion Tar and Paper Company, sponsored by English interests. This was announced by the Earl of Dufferin, V.C., and Sir Harold Botton after a recent visit to Canada. Sites have already been secured in Montreal, Winnipeg, Vancouver and Toronto.

Canada's trade balance is being steadily maintained, for, according to the February returns, just issued, the imports for that month, which totalled $95,125,882, showed an increase of $3,173,814, from the same month last year, while the exports for February, this year, totalling $97,274,543, showed an increase of $9,618,382.

Mon. George H. Henry, Ontario minister of public works and highways, has announced a change in the method of financing the planting of trees along public highways. Instead of sending out its own workmen, he says, the Government has a scheme whereby farmers plant trees in front of their own property will be bonused so much per tree planted.

Over $1,000 has been paid by the Province of New Brunswick in wages and bonuses since the commencement of the present fiscal year. Already approximately 400 claims for the 33 bounty offered for each animal have been handled by the chief game warden's branch of the Department of Lands and Forests as compared with the 51 claims made in 1923, following the bounty offer passed by the legislature in that year.

The splendid success attained by irrigation in Alberta is evidenced by the last financial statement of the Taber Irrigation District. The report reveals a total surplus collectable on or hand of $30,000, of which $7,000 is on deposit in the bank. Operations have been so satisfactory that negotiations have been entered into with the Canadian Pacific Railway to set up a sinking fund of $3,000 to $5,000 to redeem bonds of the district held by the railway. In this way it is hoped that the district will be cleared of debt in a few years.

The Canadian Pacific Railway announces that it will resume its winter cruises in 1925, one round the world and the other to the Mediterranean. The 22,000-ton Empress of France has been selected for the former cruise, which will last four months and will completely encircle the globe. She will start from New York on January 27th. The ship has been recently converted into an oil-burner and entirely renovated. The Empress of Scotland, 42,000 tons, will make the Mediterranean cruises, lasting four months and including all points of interest on that sea.

The Trans-Canada Limited, the country's largest of the Canadian Pacific between Montreal and Vancouver, and the longest distance and fastest long-distance express in the world, will resume service May 18th at both ends of the route. The running time between Montreal and Vancouver, formerly 92 hours, has been cut by two hours and the running time between Toronto and Vancouver, formerly 85 hours and 40 minutes, by one hour and 15 minutes. These cuts will benefit those going to Europe and the Orient.

ODDFELLOWS' ANNIVERSARY SERVICE

All members are requested to meet at the Oddfellows' Hall, at 10.30 a.m., on Sunday, April 27th, when they will proceed to the Methodist Church for their 105th anniversary service.
Joe Lewis, Rec. Secretary.

RIDING ETIQUETTE

It is bad form to:
To crowd a way between other riders.
To touch another rider's stirrups.
To over-ride a hired horse.
To return it ungrudging.
To let others ride it without the consent of the owner.
When passing others, on a muddy road, to gallop past, throwing and over them. Slow down to a trot until a reasonable distance past, then gallop again.
Ride a known kicker or biter amongst other riders. Keep on the outside of the party, or in rear.
To mount and ride away before the others are mounted. This disturbs the other horses and makes them difficult to mount. If you wish to leave the party, lead your horse a few paces away, then mount.
Keep others waiting whilst you adjust saddlery. See to this before leaving stable or before joining others.
Don't race through the streets.
Be at the Meet at the appointed time.
On arrival, pay the usual courtesies to the Master and the Huntsmen.
Don't leave the meet. Before a start is made chat with others and make introductions where necessary.
If saddlery needs adjustment, dismount and lead your horse to one side. Don't ask anyone to hold it.
If your horse is a kicker, put a bit of red ribbon in his tail, for the benefit of other riders, and keep him away from the horses at the meet. If he bites, put the ribbon in his mane or bridle.
If hounds are collected and moving off, be ready to follow.
Don't ride in front of the Master or the Huntsmen. Keep well in rear until hounds are in cry.
When hounds are checked, wait until they find again. Don't give advice to the Huntsmen and don't go off on a lone hunt.
If you have to open a gate, see that it is fastened again, but wait until others near are through.
In case of others, give all assistance, call others if necessary.
Don't spoil the pleasure of others by continually asking their aid for trivial things, especially during a run. Learn to do things for yourself, or stay at home.
If you are riding with a lady, don't attempt a jump if her horse is not likely to take it; ask her pleasure or seek a way round.
When the Master signifies the end of the hunt, the field disperses and go their own way home. Get all the pleasure you can out of the Hunt by entering into the spirit of the thing and being sportmanlike. On your return, think of the comfort of your horse. Don't take the saddle off right away. Loosen the girths first. After a few minutes take the saddle off. This will prevent a sore back.
